

Weekly Update – Team Tech-N-Effect

April 9, 2014

Our team has had a very productive and exciting week! After our team mini-presentation during the synchronous session last week, we felt well prepared to move forward with our project.

This week we had our first in-person team meeting – what a fun and productive evening! It was great to meet, chat about our careers and personal interests, and get down to the business of finalizing the design of our project. Our project is on-target for completion based upon our group's timeline. Members are submitting final content to the team member that incorporates the content into our presentation format. Communication with our SME is ongoing, and we are looking forward to his feedback regarding our project.

In addition to finalizing the specific content and design of the project, we also developed the final draft of our evaluation piece – a survey to be completed by faculty members and educators after they've viewed our project. We have identified individuals to complete this evaluation for us in order to meet the time constraints of our course.

As a group we have also decided how to best share the responsibilities for our contributions to both our final paper and final presentation for our webpage. One team member has used her creative talents to improve the visual appeal of our page – our thanks to her for taking this initiative.

Meeting in person has helped us to develop an incredibly positive group dynamic, and we are looking forward to completing this project together with support and encouragement from one another.

Janel Koellner, communicator
Team Tech-N-Effect